

TENSION LESSENS IN NEAR EAST

Plans Maturing For General Peace Conference. No New Territorial Encroachment to be Made in Meantime.

(By International News Service.)

Now that a Balkan war appears completely to have been averted, Allied representatives are conferring in Paris today upon plans for a Near East peace conference. It may be held within a fortnight.

Great Britain has formally refused the request of the Turkish Nationalists to occupy Thrace or the eastern part, until the peace conference establishes the new frontiers of Turkey.

According to London press advices, Lord Curzon, British foreign secretary who is in Paris, has been instructed to arrange for Allied occupation of the Gallipoli Peninsula and the withdrawal of Allied troops from the Asiatic shores of the Turkish straits. This would be a concession to the Turks.

There was an unconfirmed report from Constantinople that Turkish Cavalry had approached the outskirts of Biglia, in the Allied neutral zone, but neither the British nor French war offices could verify it.

Greece has undertaken reorganization of her army in Thrace as the result of widespread mutiny. Additional Greek reservists may be called up.

Britain continues to order reinforcements into Asia Minor but on a small scale.

Despite advices from Paris quoting Ahmed Ferid Bey, the Turkish "envoy," as saying that Turkey will never accept an Allied protectorate for Constantinople, British officials believe that the situation is rapidly clearing and that a solution will be reached without fighting. This was strengthened by the fact that Premier Lloyd-George has left London for a brief vacation.

SENT POSEY TO RANDALL'S ISLAND

Skipped With Leader's Bank Deposit—Moses Wanted at Dobbs Ferry—Catskill Man Was a Parler and Pays $2 Fine.

William Posey, the 14 year old negro boy who skipped with a bank deposit from the Kingston Leader the other day, was committed to Randall's Island this morning in children's court by Judge Schirck. The young lad had been employed doing odd jobs around the Leader office and was sent to the bank to make a deposit which consisted of about $55 in cash and several hundred dollars in checks. The lad took the money and threw the checks and deposit book in the Rondout creek.

His chum, Moses Hamilton, 15 years old, was identified Tuesday afternoon as a boy who had escaped from a colored institution at Dobbs Ferry, and was taken back to serve out his two years' unexpired term that day by an officer from the institution.

Austin R. Newcombe of Catskill, arrested by Officer Fout on a charge of parking his car for two hours on John street, paid a fine of $2.

There were no other cases in police court.

DOG GONE; NOW THERE'S A BEAR

Crosspatch Nature Notes.—N. Y. Throat Specialist Offers To Operate On Mountain Children Without Charge—Kittens Amuse City People.

Dr. J. Ernest Gigneaux, the well known throat specialist of New York, spent last Sunday at Crosspatch. He motored up with several friends and they stayed up all night to see that big 200 pound bear which often tumbles down the mountain to the cold spring about a quarter of a mile from the Community House, to eat apples and have a luxurious roll in the long grass, near the house.

Dr. Gigneaux was sure they saw Bruin, but their description was a bit hazy. Mrs. Eleanor MacDonald, Mrs. Cross's mother, happened to look out one moonlight night recently and saw Mr. Bear waddling down the path from the shower bath, near the cold spring. She declines to stay alone at Crosspatch since that. Mrs. Cross tried to persuade her that she saw "Sheepy" the big sheep dog, one of the chief ornaments of Crosspatch, but Mrs. MacDonald had taken the precaution to locate Sheepy in the living room, at the time she saw the bear.

Dr. Gigneaux expects to take possession of the Frank Benjamin place, just above Crosspatch Community House, on Saturday and will have several hunting parties and will, although he will not build his new residence until spring. The Benjamin family have bought a place at Edgewood over the mountain.

An contribution to community welfare, Dr. Gigneaux will operate on all the children of the neighborhood who have adenoids or diseased tonsils. He will bring an assistant and a trained nurse from New York and will do all without charge.

Four Benjamin children need his services and as they will be in Edgewood, he will go there and operate on all the others who offer themselves for examination.

Dr. Gigneaux operates on ten cases in a forenoon and has done over 4,000 such throat operations in the last ten years, without ever losing a case. So Crosspatch feels very happy to have his interest in the community work of a neighborhood which needs it very badly.

Crosspatch has two trick kittens who really should be their stunt for the movies. Tommy, a jet black kitten, invented it. He sits near the cow, opens his mouth and takes a jet of milk directly from nature's fount. Then Jane, his little sister, pushes him away and the jet of milk lands squarely in her open mouth. They take turns until they have all the nice warm Jersey milk they want, then the stream is diverted to the pail for family use. Mrs. Cross says "It's no wonder we have to buy butter, when the kittens get first call on the milk at the source of production." The city visitors were very much amused to see the kittens and wanted to take the whole outfit before a movie camera.

Rex, the pedigreed Airedale, hasn't come back, but Earl Lane, who runs the mail auto from West Hurley to Willow, claims his best. He saw a vegetable peddler, with an Airedale near Woodstock.

"Where'd you get that dog?"

"Found him."

"Hand him over, that's Crosspatch's Airedale."

As Earl is pretty husky the peddler did what he was told and the Airedale motored to Willow.

Unfortunately the dog wasn't the one which had strayed and Earl gave his chauffeur the job of finding the peddler and returning the dog. As Earl had never seen the Crosspatch hound, it was thought Captain Cross should at least pass the cigars in appreciation of good intentions.

LENINE URGES RUSSIA TO CREATE OWN CAPITAL

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Moscow, Sept. 20.—Nicolai Lenin in a letter of greeting to the All-Russian Labor Union Congress today urged the workers to abandon all hope of foreign capital coming into Russia.

"We must settle down to an accumulation of our own capital," said Lenin. "We will not restore private property to the capitalists despite the demands of the Allied powers. This was to be the condition of a loan. If any dispute our decision let them think of the rest of the world where a few millionaires rule."

Commissar Zinovieff declared that the harvest is encouraging and that food conditions will be better soon. He admitted that wages are inadequate, but said that Russia must build up her capital.

HUDSON PREDICTS EXHIBITS SUCCESS

Knows Director Wilson As a Man Who Has Done Things—Industrial Survey Which is to Follow Chamber's Most Important Forward Step.

The exceptional amount of favorable comment with which announcement of the plans for the Kingston Exposition has been received shows that this event will be an overwhelming success and a great credit to Kingston as well as the Chamber of Commerce which is its sponsor, said Sydney D. M. Hudson, former secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, to a Freeman representative this morning.

Mr. Hudson added that the industrial and promotional survey, the cost of which will be paid out of the profits realized from the Exposition, is, in his judgment, the most important forward step ever undertaken by the Kingston Chamber of Commerce.

"It is very easy to appreciate," he said further, "the value to Kingston of an individual new industry such as the silk mill which was the first of a series of new industries recently brought here through the Chamber's efforts. It is equally easy to grasp the financial and publicity value to Kingston of the new Van Winkle Hotel—the idea of which was conceived by the Chamber and the financing to the extent of $150,000 secured by the Chamber's committee."

"It will be equally easy to recall such achievements as the formation of the Catskill-Shawangunk Mountain Association and the establishment of motor bus terminals, the effecting of cooperation between the Chamber and the Farm Bureau for the mutual benefit of city and country; the tremendous successful Dress-Up Week of three years ago and many other things which the Chamber of Commerce has done for its citizens generally."

"The promotional and industrial survey grows out of the need which has been felt for some years by everyone actively interested in the Chamber's work of more careful planning and a more complete knowledge of Kingston's opportunities and of the best ways to take advantage of them. I expect to see growing out of this survey definite plans for the development of Kingston which will tend to put the Chamber's activities into the most fruitful channel and make possible the accomplishment of results for the industrial, trade and community interests of Kingston which will altogether surpass even the important things which have been effected within the past few years."

"I have for several years been acquainted with Samuel Wilson, director of the General Organization Company, which has charge of both Exposition and Survey, and have for a long time hoped for the opportunity which has now arrived of having Mr. Wilson help us in Kingston."

"He is a thoroughly practical man having formed the General Organization Company after an extended personal experience in dealing with the problems in regard to which he is now a matured counselor. He was for some time secretary of the Chamber of Commerce of Johnstown, Pa., and later of Kansas City, Kansas. Following that he spent years in national commercial organization work with full opportunity to compare the needs of various cities and the methods successfully to use in securing their development."

National recognition of his ability came with his appointment to a Commission of Experts to advise the Carranza Government of Mexico.

"Mr. Wilson's point of view is very similar to that of Dr. B. M. Randall whom Chamber of Commerce campaign workers in Kingston will remember and who has carried on a similar survey for San Francisco and northern California which has already resulted in an unprecedented development of trade and activities on that part of the Pacific Coast."

"A personal acquaintance with Chamber of Commerce men in other cities served by Mr. Wilson, including his latest contract at Rome, N. Y., has more than borne out my own favorable judgment of him."

"The combined Exposition and Survey means the kind of an opportunity for Kingston which very rarely comes and which, if taken full advantage of, will go far toward assuring that healthful growth which will be of immense value to the city and of very direct benefit to every retailer, wholesaler, manufacturer and in fact to everyone engaged in or affected by any Kingston enterprise."

"One thing more ought to be said about Mr. Wilson. He represents a most desirable balance in his view of Chamber of Commerce activity. Within the past ten years, the new and important idea that a Chamber of Commerce should work for civic betterment has in many cities been carried to such foolish extremes that it has been almost forgotten that Chambers of Commerce have anything to do with trade and industry. The Kingston organization has never gone to such extremes. It will, nevertheless, I believe, be a most excellent thing for us to have a Chamber of Commerce program worked out primarily from the standpoint of trade and industry, and the civic side of the Chamber's activities will be strengthened rather than weakened by being examined in the light of their relations to the prosperity of all our people."

BONUS FIGHT IS ONLY STARTING

So Say Its Host of Friends As It Goes Back to Congress—House to Override Veto But Senate Will Sustain.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Washington, Sept. 20.—The battle-scarred soldiers' bonus bill went back to congress today—apparently to die.

The house is expected to prolong its life a little while by passing it over President Harding's vigorous veto. Then it will go to the senate, where a close checkup revealed today that it will be given the death thrust.

The bonus, however, cannot be considered as permanently interred, even after the senate sustains the White House veto. Friends of the bonus—and they number a majority in both branches of congress—and officers of the American Legion, made this plain today.

"This fight is only starting," Hanford Mac Nider, national commander of the American Legion, told International News Service today. "We are just taking off our coats. There is no thought of dropping it. We won against seemingly great odds in France, and we are not discouraged now."

Other friends of the bonus in congress asserted without qualification that new bonus legislation will be introduced in the next session of congress starting in December. Whether the new legislation will duplicate the Fordney-McCumber bill, now doomed to death, has not been determined, but that there will be a new bonus bill, there can be little doubt.

Friend and foe of the present bill were hurrying alike to Washington today to be registered on the veto vote. The house, it appeared, will override the veto by a good majority, but the senate line-up made its defeat certain. Of the 32 or 33 senators known to be opposed to the bill, 31 were in the capital today or en route here. Of the sixty-odd friends of the bonus, slightly less than fifty were known to be in Washington today. Unofficial figures set the senate vote at 47 or 48 against the president and for the bonus, to 29 or 30 for the president and against the bonus. Two-thirds are required to override a veto.

President Harding's message did not cause any material change in the line-up, it was disclosed today by senatorial comment.

Speaking for the Republican bonus forces, Senator James E. Watson, Republican of Indiana, said:

"While the president wrote a strong message after all we are familiar with the argument stated and I do not think it resulted in any change of votes. The Republicans of the senate admire the president and desire to follow him politically. But I do not regard the bonus veto as a proposition on which they should follow him after having made individual commitments to their constituents."

Voicing the sentiment of the Republican anti-bonus forces, Senator Edge, Republican of New Jersey, said:

"The message should be convincing to the entire country that the president's heart is with the veterans, but that this bill cannot be enacted at this time when the general welfare is contemplated. It will be with great pleasure that I shall vote to sustain his veto."

On behalf of the Democratic bonus forces, Senator Pat Harrison, Democrat of Mississippi, said:

"The message sounded very Melonious. Those who believed the president would follow his usual course of breaking campaign pledges, are not surprised. The day the president denied a small recognition to the heroes of the late war, his party voted additional favors to the special interests that needed no help."

BEER KEG PROVES A POOR EMBLEM

"Wet" Congressional Aspirants Beaten In Western New York—Henry Has Close Call.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Rochester, N. Y., Sept. 20.—"Wet" aspirants for congressional seats fared rather poorly in yesterday's primary contests in the western portion of New York state.

Frank H. Puro, who conducted his state senatorial campaign in Oswego county with a beer keg as an emblem, went down to defeat, polling 268 votes in 62 out of 87 districts. Willard S. Augsbury, the winner, receiving 2,509 in the same number of districts.

Congressman Lewis Henry won out by a small majority over three contestants in the 37th congressional district, returns today indicated. Henry won his seat in congress in a special election last Spring. Frank C. Platt, who opposed him yesterday with two others, advocated an amendment to the 18th amendment and ran a good race.

Congressman Archie D. Sanders of Stafford, easily defeated Clark Ellis for the Republican nomination for member of congress in the 39th district.

In Monroe county, Assemblyman Franklin W. Judson defeated Harry T. Donovan for the Republican nomination for sheriff. In Cayuga county, Sanford Lyons, "dry" candidate, defeated Harry D. Tripp, for the Republican assembly nomination.

Ward's Majority Over Coons 1,400 in County, He Carrying All But 19 Districts—He Received Votes of 230 Democrats While Burns Got 460—Traver and Van Etten Given Democratic Nomination Besides Republican.

By a decisive vote, the enrolled Woodstock ----- 2 23 23 voters in the Republican and Democratic parties in Ulster county in the primary election on Tuesday defeated the attempt of William H. Anderson and his "staff" of the Anti-Saloon League to select nominees of the party within this county.

In the Republican primary, Congressman Charles B. Ward was re-nominated, carrying the county by more than 1,400 majority over H. Westlake Coons, who had been induced to enter the primary by Anderson after the convention which had endorsed Congressman Ward.

In the Democratic primary, John S. Burns of Monticello, who was selected by the Democratic county chairman of the five counties comprising the Twenty-seventh congressional district, was selected as that party's nominee, receiving more than 460 votes by the writing of his name on the ballot. Congressman Ward receiving more than 230 votes by the same method, and Mr. Coons receiving by the same method 140 votes.

Mr. Coons was without opposition in the Prohibition party primary for the congressional nomination.

Throughout the county, many Democrats wrote in the names of Frederick G. Traver for district attorney and of William H. Van Etten for county treasurer, which insures them the Democratic nomination for those offices besides the Republican nominations which they received in the Republican primary.

Kingston city gave Congressman Ward more than $50 majority over Mr. Coons in the Republican primary. There are eighty-nine election districts in the county. Returns had been received from all except four of them up to the time The Freeman went to press, and Congressman Ward had carried all except nineteen districts.

The vote by districts is as follows:

"BIG TREES" WORLD WONDERS

United States Government is Keenly Alive to the Demand for Preservation of the Redwoods.Our great parks, the Yosemite, Tel-lowstone, Sequoia and General Grant, must be kept under military supervision in order to preserve their natural wonders against injury from trespassers. Of all these miracles of nature, the "big trees" are the most astonishing. There are two species—the sequoia sempervirens, or ordinary redwood, and the sequoia gigantea, which is, strictly speaking, the "big tree" of California.These stately creatures are so impressive that it seems quite fitting to honor them with distinguished titles.
Nearly every state in the Union and many of the distinguished generals of the Civil war have names among them.
The "General Grant" and the "General Sherman" are individuals of the largest size, and, with the "Grizzly Giant," are probably the biggest of all trees.Before one of the national expositions the government ordered a section of redwood thirty feet long for exhibition and for this it agreed to pay $7,000. Before the lumber company had succeeded in delivering it on the cars it had cost nearly that amount. For a mountain wagon road five miles long had to be built to get it out, and a trench was dug as long and as large as the tree itself to set it in.The same company also furnished another tree for another exhibition, which was cut in General Grant park not a hundred yards from the spot where the "General Grant" stands in all its majesty. In the same grove lies the "Fallen Monarch," through the burnt-out heart of which a mounted horseman can ride with ease.In the Yosemite is the "Wawona," a tree with a hole burnt in its base, through which the road runs and big automobiles are driven without difficulty, and on the "Mark Twain" stump of the General Grant park eighteen full-sized cavalry horses have easily stood. It is twenty-six feet in diameter.—Washington Star.

Primitive Eskimos.

Ten years among the Eskimo, five of which were spent among the so-called "blonde Eskimo" of the Mackenzie delta and Coronation gulf districts of the Arctic, is the record of Rev. Edward Hester, a Church of England missionary.The Coronation gulf Eskimos are very primitive, he states. Their weapons consist of bows and arrows made by themselves. Ray meat is their principal food diet, the diet varying only with the hunting seasons. In seal-hunting time seal meat is the daily bill of fare; in caribou time, the caribou only is eaten.Though the Eskimo may have both seal and caribou meat on hand at the same time, his peculiar beliefs forbid him to eat seal meat at caribou time, and vice versa. Neither may he eat a land meat, such as caribou, when on water or ice, so he lives on seal meat.
When he takes to the land in the spring he must not eat seal flesh. The breaking of either of these rules will call down upon his head the wrath of the departed, who are always very evil spirits, says the Eskimo.

Building a Church in a Day.

Rome was not built in a day, but then Rome was very much behind the times! On the outskirts of Chicago a feat that would have astonished the Romans has been performed, and it sounds a little startling even to our ears. A contract was signed on a Friday for the building of a church. The document stipulated that the church should be ready for dedication on the Sunday following. Just one day was left for the putting up of a building which was to hold about three thousand people! At dawn on the Saturday morning the workmen started, and at seven o'clock that evening the men were putting in windows, doors, and electric light. No floor was laid, but by midnight all else was done and the dedication services were held the following day. This feat had a parallel in Pontiac county, Que., about forty years ago.

Horse Rode on Cowcatcher.

A tall story was brought into New Westminster, B. C., by the crew of an electric railway train, Fraser Valley branch. They said that as they waited at the "Y" for a westbound C. N. R. freight to get on to the bridge they saw a horse jump off the cowcatcher of the C. N. R. locomotive. It ran down the B. C. electric railway track toward their train, halted until the C. N. R.
train went past, then turned and galloped back to the south shore: rumbled once on the ties, then regained its footing and vanished. The story goes on to say that the freight had run through a band of horses at Hope and this one had been riding on the cow catcher for several miles.

HOOKING UP NEW TWENTY-INC PIPE

New Pipe Line is Expected to Furnish Sufficient Pressure on the High Points of Kingston—Has Been Under Construction for Some Time.

Superintendent Harrison and a force of men of the Kingston water department are busy at work hooking up the new twenty-inch water main with the water system of the city and it is expected that the job will be completed today.

Owing to insufficient pressure on the high points of the city the residents have often complained of not receiving enough water for household or fire purposes. It is expected that with the increased pressure received by this additional pipe line that difficulty will be overcome.

The new twenty-inch main is laid from the Froer farm on the Esopus creek to Manor avenue, and from Manor avenue it is reduced and taken over Stephen street and so on to the various high points of the city through 12 inch mains, and those of 8 and 6 inch size.

The work of building the new pipe line was started several years ago but was not completed until this year owing to the greatly increased cost in the price of material due to the World War.

A DOUBLE TRAGEDY.

Two Meet Death When Speeding Car Upset.

Miss Beulah Telford of Walton was killed outright and William McKillip of Stamford was so seriously injured that he died about three hours later Monday afternoon about 3 o'clock, while motoring along the state road four miles west of Stamford on the Oneonta-Stamford highway, when the touring car in which they were riding hit a culvert and changed ends, turning over and pinning the occupants beneath the overturned car. Miss Telford breathed a few times after Mrs. W. C. Hunt, who lives near the scene of the accident, reached the overturned car. Mr. McKillip was removed to his home in Stamford village and regained consciousness for a time.

BARGE HIT PIER

And Sank Off Poughkeepsie Monday Morning.

The Governor Smith, a barge loaded with wheat from the Lakes, sank in the Hudson river just below Poughkeepsie, shortly after four o'clock Monday morning, after striking a pier of the Poughkeepsie bridge. The bow of the barge was damaged so that she went down within a half hour of the accident. A small piece was broken off a corner of the bridge pier. No cause for the accident could be furnished as the bridge lights were reported lit at the time. The barge was headed for New York. No one aboard the barge was injured.

SIMPLICITY IS THE KEYNOTE

Delightfully simple is this frock of apple-green tulle and white silk crepe. Tulle bands trim the unusually attractive sleeves.

AMONG NEW BLOUSE STYLES

Wearable Garments of the Season Include Crepe de Chine Models in Varied Colors.

When one applies the word wearable to new blouse styles it means more than the average reader is apt to glean, and it is with an idea of stressing the value of this adjective, that it is emphasized. One company has a comprehensive showing of blouses that are uniformly wearable and attractive. This manufacturer has concentrated on one price for all blouses, and they present tempting array of popular numbers.

Venise and St. Gall laces are used in profusion on the ruffled fronts of many frilled blouses. These are shown in white, pink and bisque georgettes of a good quality. A silk of crepe character has been employed in those overblouse models on middie lines. Yam embroidery in bright colors makes most appropriate trimmings for these outdoor styles.

Crepe de chine blouses show a favoritism for medallion effects in their beaded embellishment, and the wide color range in which they make their appearance is one of the selling features of these styles. Clender, ermine, canna and porcelain blue are a few of those shades most in demand at the moment.

In blouse numbers, with the literal meaning of the word, crepe de chine has been combined with a knitted fabric that forms the Peter Pan collar, cuffs, girdle and polo tie that finishes it. The full blouse effect of this model and the entire aspect of the knitted trimming make an ideal number.

LEATHER AND METAL BELTS

Combination of Materials and Colors Popular for Accessory; Are Exceedingly Smart.

Leather belts are not, perhaps, in the highest fashion. But for that very reason they hold out an interest to the woman who likes to dress with distinction. Correctly worn, they are exceedingly smart.

Leather alone and leather in combination with metal in some form are used in the new belts. Some show combinations of two colors—black and white, and red and white, tan and brown and gray and black. There are cutouts in the leather belt to show snude facings. Sometimes the cutouts are in the form of flowers, with the flower centers marked with metal beads.

For outing wear there are some dog-leash belts—circular or tubular belts of glazed leather. These are fastened with metal buckles, and they come in various shades of brown, gray and tan.

There are narrow black suede and patent leather belts, some with tiny pockets on the front. There are other belts that go in shoes, showing collars and cuffs to match the belts. These are in glazed leather or in suede.

Red is one of the colors chosen for belts, and there are some lovely ones of red suede. Some of these belts are trimmed with fringe, either in slashed suede or in straw, which is sometimes used for embroidering the belt in geometrical designs.

There are some interesting belts made of strips of leather laced in and out through metal rings, with long slashed fringes hanging down at the front.

Fancy Outing Shoes.

Among the new shoes for pastime wear are white oxfords with toe tips and vamps of not merely black or tan, but also lavender, green, red and blue. It is possible to match almost any costume in these shoes. Gray calf is the foundation for another oxford which has a black saddle and tip. A walking pump, with a smart strap for the ankle, is of white and has a Cuban heel and trimmings of tan, purple, green, red or blue.

Capes for Next Winter.

Capes are by no means excluded from the winter collections. Nearly every collection shows models carefully considered along lines suitable for Southern climate. These employ soft pile fabrics, with fur trimmings, and in most cases show a tendency to elaborate styles.

Ever Hopeful.

Following is a card received from my little sister up in the country on a vacation: "Dear Marian: I am having a fine time. I arrived safe and hope to arrive the same way going home. Love from Gertrude."—Chicago Tribune.

GOT VERIFICATION FROM DAD

Small Boy Satisfied That Malachy Was Right About the Steering Gear of Bulldozers.

An eminent college professor is the father of a small boy who is very observant and inquisitive, and is the employer of a man who has much Irish wit and humor.

One day Alfred, the small boy, was playing with a cat in the stable while Malachy cleaned the harness.

"Say Malachy," the child asked, "why do cats always land on their feet?"

"They steer themselves wid their tail,"

"Well, how do rabbits steer themselves? They haven't long tails, only a stub."

"Wid their ears; that's phwat they have their long ears for."

"How does a bulldog steer himself? He doesn't have long ears or a long tail."

"Wid his back."

At this the boy looked doubtful. Presently he ran to his father's study, and in a few minutes came back to the stable.

"Malachy!"

"Yis!"

"That's true what you told me about bulldogs. I asked papa, and he read something to mother out of a book about barks that steer against the wind."—Pittsburgh Dispatch.

PEAT BOGS TO BE UTILIZED

Commercial Value of Immense Deposits in Northwest Germany Has Not Hitherto Been Realized.

The more or less successful installations in northwest Germany for the utilization of the immense peat bogs that exist there has led to the suggestion in England that the huge bog of Allon in Ireland may next become a great center of industry. The German undertaking has contemplated the bringing of a large part of the bogs under cultivation, together with the conversion of the peat into fuel, to be employed in the development of electrical energy for agricultural purposes as well as for supplying light and power to a number of towns situated within a radius of fifty miles. A network of canals is it is reported, in process of formation to drain the ground, and the peat dredged out is to be utilized in the way just described. It is estimated that the gas produced from the peat will furnish work to the amount of 600 horsepower hours for each ton, and a large quantity of ammonia will be recovered for use as fertilizer.—Washington Star.

Evolution of Trousers.

Present-day trousers were evolved from the petticoat, and the petticoat was evolved from the shawl. The early cave man wore the hide of his shoulders by carrying home fat, juicy antediluvian tidbits, and so he threw a skin of an animal about his shoulders for protection from the weather where he had lost fur. This he caught with his hands and held around his arms, making a sort of temporary sleeve. In time he learned that by putting a few thorns in the skin he could fasten it about his arm so as to make a kind of tunic sleeve. From the tunic grew the coat. But at noon-day it became so warm that the cave man could slip his shawl down around his waist. He tied the shawl about his waist with a reed and thus was born the first petticoat. Eventually he found that by fastening a thorn in the middle of the petticoat he could walk more conveniently. And thus were evolved trousers.

Unexpected Candor.

My most embarrassing moment occurred one day last winter. I was attending a church bazaar with a friend of whom I was very fond. All went well until we came to the pillow booth, where I made my horrible break. Quite confidentially I told her: "Now, some of those pillows aren't so bad looking, and some of them are really quite good looking, but did you ever in your life see one in as poor taste as that?"

My friend looked at me queerly for a moment and then said: "I'll admit it is in poor taste, but, then, you see, I am rather noted for my lack of taste, and I made that."

I made a hasty exit, and have not since had the courage to face her, though she insists on considering it a joke.—Chicago Tribune.

SEEN THROUGH ENGLISH EYES

Traveler Declares American Women Splendidly Domesticated and Versatile to a High Degree.

An entertaining way for the American woman to see herself as she is seen is to follow the comments made by the Manchester Guardian's correspondent in America, Muriel Harris.

In her home the American woman is domestic almost in the German sense. There is no handmaid over the kitchen entirely to the cook for instance.

There is no hard-and-fast line which leaves this to the maid and that to the mistress. Domestic crises are more frequent even than in England, but when they occur it is no special tragedy, because the mistress of the house is practically always able to fill in the gap without shaking the foundations of the household. American women can nearly all of them cook and sew and do anything in the house from managing the furnace to seeing that the electric fuses are in order.

In our sense, she is far more domesticated and less well educated than is the European girl. The rather casual education of the girl gives full play to any versatility she may have, and there are, correspondingly, brilliant flashes in her, as also unexpected failures. To the foreigner, it is odd to see her scrubbing her own sink—a very nice white sink, by the way—and attending assiduously to lectures on French—all with the same enthusiasm. It completely dispels the idea of the luxury-loving, restless woman that in Europe she is commonly regarded as being.

He Had Help.

An alumna of Radcliff was helping in the recent drive to raise money for the Radcliff fund by selling soap, says the Indianapolis News.

She employed two small boys to take the soap to the homes of some of her friends. Little Johnnie, with the boxes under each arm, marched up to one door and knocked.

"Why are you selling the soap," inquired the lady of the house.

"To raise $3,000,000 for Radcliff."

"Three million dollars? And are you trying to raise it all by yourself?"

"No," came the quick response. "There's another little boy helping me."

LEADS IN HOME OWNERSHIP

According to Population, Canada is at the Head of All Nations in That Respect.

Canada has a larger percentage of home owners in its population than any other nation according to recent compiled figures of the census department.

London, Ontario, leads among Canadian cities with 80 per cent of its inhabitants owning their own homes.

Hamilton and Calgary have 60 per cent home owners. Toronto 55 per cent. Halifax 51 per cent. Vancouver 45 per cent. Edmonton 45 per cent. Winnipeg 44 per cent. Ottawa 40 per cent. Montreal 35 per cent.

Montreal, the largest city in Canada, puts down the general average to 35 per cent for the ten cities. Taking into consideration the country districts, it is believed by the census experts that nearly 50 per cent of the people of Canada own their own homes.

Canada is a land of farm owners where the tenant farmer is almost unknown.

The ten cities covered by the figures range in number of residences from 9,000 to 134,000. Of 72 cities in the United States with a population of 100,000 or more only two, Des Moines and Grand Rapids, it is declared, have a 50 per cent population of home owners.

Des Moines tops the list with 51 per cent while Grand Rapids has only a shade fewer. Recent government statistics in the United States show that 45.6 per cent of the people of the United States own their own homes and 54.4 per cent live in rented quarters.

Double Cylinder Air Motor.

An air motor, on the order of those used in pneumatic tools, but of such extreme compactness that it is no bigger than a safety-match box, weighs only three ounces, and yet develops over half a horsepower, was an outstanding feature of a recent model exposition at Dublin, Ireland.

The motor, illustrated and described in Popular Mechanics Magazine, is double-acting, with two opposed cylinders of three-quarter-inch bore and stroke, and runs on compressed air at 100 to 300 pounds' pressure.

Gen. Sir Charles Townshend, General Sir Charles Townshend, hero of the Siege of Kut el Amara, in Mesopotamia, has just declared in Paris that the Allies must surrender Constantinople or precipitate a Holy War of all Moslems in India as well, that will menace the existence of the British Empire.

Some Shot.

Marvin, age nine, from Darlington, was visiting his aunt in Frankfurt, when she overheard a playmate ask him whether the boys played marbles in Darlington. He replied: "I'll say they do, there's a boy there got 25,000."

"Thinking he might have the number 1000 or more too high, his aunt said: 'No no, Marvin you don't mean 25,000, you mean—'"

"Yes, I do, amine cause he never loses."—Indianapolis News.

Hard-Flated Fielder.

An outfielder of the Los Angeles team in a recent game with San Francisco collided with the fence in making a won ball catch and was knocked unconscious, and when he was carried to the clubhouse the ball was in his hand in a vise-like grip. Most managers would be satisfied if their players would clutch the ball like that when they are conscious.

AMERICANS IN EUROPE.

Again, as in previous seasons since travel was resumed after the war, Americans returning from trips abroad tell conflicting stories as to the attitude toward our countrymen "over there." One tells of how inexpensively he lived and shopped and another of how he was "starved" and "stung" in the same locality. Some complain of the unfriendliness of the French, while others speak appreciatively of Gallic politeness and cordiality. There is the same variation as regards the attitude and behavior of our British cousins; one found real good fellowship, while another complains of a patronizing air, of coldness and even criticism. Of course there is an element of truth in all the stories; for there are all sorts of people in every country of Europe, just as there is the same variety here at home.

One thing we need to remember, in forming conclusions, is that Americans of many kinds are now visiting Europe and that it is as true now as it ever was that a gentleman is likely to win good will wherever he may travel. Perhaps even the average American going to Europe since the war expects too much of grateful tribute to his country in the form of courtesies to himself, forgetting that the people of every Allied nation inevitably believe that, though the others helped, their country really won the war. This is human nature. It is worthy of note that there are or have been special courtesies to Americans, even from officials. Last season returning travelers reported that in France and Belgium the baggage of our person with an American passport was at once passed without examination. It would seem to be reasonable to conclude that now as in former times the modest and well-travelled American tourist will find nothing to complain of in French or English folk of the same type.

MORTALITY AND THE SEXES.

The Department of Commerce's studies in births, deaths and population, based on the census showings for several decades, have brought to light two important facts. One is that our rural population, regardless of sex, has a lower mortality for almost the entire range of life than our urban population; the other is that mortality at virtually all ages is higher in men than in women, and that the most favorable mortality among women is found in the rural districts. It appears, therefore, that in spite of the better sanitation of the cities there is a larger chance of life for both sexes in the country, and that this is particularly true of the female sex notwithstanding all we have heard about the insanity-breeding and health-breaking loneliness and toil of farmers' wives.

The general showing favorable to women brings to mind the old question as to which sex has "the best time" and which endures or suffers the more. This question has been discussed ever since and doubtless before Euripides made Medea say: "Twice would I stand on the rough edge of battle ere once bear the pangs of childbirth." Without mortality statistics covering the more than 24 centuries since Euripides wrote it is impossible to know whether the advantage enjoyed by women is only a modern development, but if it be such there are good reasons for it. Modern civilization, while bringing more ease to women, has undoubtedly added to the cares of men, and care kills. The modern woman has many trials, but in general she is relieved of the caring care and anxious uncertainty which too often pursue the man who must plow a treadmill of labor year in and year out in order to provide a comfortable living for his family and secure desirable educational and other advantages for his children.

JUSTICE CLARKE EXPLAINS.

In his resignation from the United States Supreme Court, sent from his home in Youngstown, Ohio, Justice Clarke said: "I shall be 65 years old on the 18th day of this month (September). For a long time I have promised what I think is my better self that at that age I would free myself as much as possible from imperative duties to the end that I may have time to read many books which I have not had time to read in a busy life; to travel and to serve my neighbors and some public causes in ways in which I can not serve them while holding important public office."

Evidently Justice Clarke wants time to invite his soul and to enrich his mind, time to do the things he would most like to do as well as secure the benefits of wider reading and travel. It is an alluring dream which has come to other men even before they reached three score years. But in some known cases, after the dream came true, it was found vaguely disappointing, accompanied with the realization that when there was plenty of time less even of the special work yearned after was accomplished than during the period crowded with imperative duties, and this because the spur to continuing effort was lacking. In one known case a holder of a high political office who had a brilliant literary style retired in order to write, but found that, with abundance of leisure, he wrote less than before, and finally with a smile and a sigh, he put himself back into regular harness.

Can You Answer These Questions?

1. If parrots are naturally imitative, do they imitate the notes of other birds?

2. Why did my little seedlings that came up all right, dwindle off after a few days?

3. Can you tell me anything of the life history of the cod-fish?

Answers in Tomorrow's Nature Notes.

Answers To Previous Questions.

1. Do plants catch each other's diseases?

Not necessarily; but a fungus disease is likely to spread from one genus to other members of the same family. Wheat "rust" for instance, infects some grasses belonging to the wheat family; but it does not spread to other grains, though it has followed wheat all over the world. A diseased tree may have for neighbor a diseased plant; but it does not follow that either infected the other. A tree suffering from woolly aphids, for instance, would not explain a nearby wheat field suffering from rust.

2. All the young chicks were stolen from my hen coop one night, but the hen wasn't hurt. Who did it?

The circumstance that chicks were taken without apparent disturbing of the hen, seems to point to a brown rat as thief. According to the investigations of D. E. Lantz for the U. S. Government, on the brown rat, this trick of carrying off chicks without molesting the hen, is peculiar to the rat.

3. Do any birds hibernate?

Not as far as is known, or at any rate scientifically proved. Considering how much food birds need to keep warm and active, it is very unlikely they could collect food enough to carry them through a winter; and even more unlikely that they could survive a winter sleep such as woodchucks undergo. The fact that certain species, as swifts, have not yet been discovered in a winter home, is no proof that such a home does not receive them annually.

Kingston, September 18.
I have a peach tree on which the peaches are not ripe yet. If it should freeze would it hurt the peaches? If so can anything be done to save them. Maybe sprinkling with a hose early in the morning would be good. Please give your advice.

CONSTANT READER.

You are right. It is not the slight freezing, but the rapid thawing, that will injure your crop. If your tree is protected from the early sun, so that the frost is thawed slowly, it will stand quite a heavy frost without injury. Sprinkling with cold water will help. This applies not only to your peach tree but to garden plants generally, such as tomatoes, peppers, etc.

THE MARVELOUS RESCUE OF ZINK

Nearly Buried in a Landslide, but is Saved From Horrible Fate by His Brother, Blink Biven, the Man With the Wonder Curve—Gallupers Enjoying Trip.

"Well, what's on the slate for today?" asked Captain Roodboy of the famous Gallupers, as he rolled out of bed at the hunting shack in the mountains and proceeded to arouse Blink and Zink Biven and Raizer Turk, the other members of the hunting expedition. The Biven boys and Raizer disliked being gotten out of bed at such an unearthly hour, and was grouchy until a hot breakfast had been deposited under their belts.

"Zink and I were thinking of exploring the caves in the mountain over there," said Blink waving his hand to the south.

"That's a good idea," agreed Roodboy, "and Turk and I will see what we can shoot over on the other side of the mountain."

After clearing off the breakfast dishes the boys separated, agreeing to meet back at the shack in the early hours of the evening. Turk and Roodboy armed with their guns set off on a hike to the other side of the mountain where Roodboy had seen traces of rabbits. "A rabbit stew would not go bad for supper," said Roodboy and Turk agreed.

Blink and Zink, however, set off in the opposite direction. They had heard Roodboy tell of the wonderful caves in the mountains and as they liked to study geology they armed themselves with a couple of hammers and a lunch and set forth on their expedition.

The caves proved all that they had expected and they spent several hours exploring them. The rock formations were even more wonderful than they had been led to expect. Finally, tired of exploring the caves, the brothers decided to make tracks for the shack.

Zink lingered behind, attracted by a peculiar rock formation, and when he emerged from the cave entrance Blink was several hundred feet away. Looking back Blink saw Zink emerge and then to his horror he saw the unexpected—a landslide.

Directly in the path of the slide stood Zink blissfully unaware of his danger. Blink uttered a yell of warning. Zink turned and saw his danger and with a yell of terror started towards his brother.

Blink realized that unless there was something done at once Zink would be unable to escape and would be buried under the huge mass of rocks and earth.

He threw a glance hastily to either side but failed to see any escape for Zink. It was not for nothing that Blink was considered one of the brainiest players in the Mountain League and his mind reacted promptly to the danger of Zink.

Reaching quickly into his pocket he withdrew a baseball which he always carried with him and, winding up, he hurled one of his famous curveback twists in the direction of Zink. The curveback, as followers of the Mountain League know, was the wonder curve of the century. It would shoot toward the plate and then suddenly jump into the air and curve back into the hands of the thrower.

As Blink hurled his wonder curve toward Zink the latter realized at once what was expected and just as the curve made a sudden twist and started on its return journey Zink made a desperate leap into the air and caught it.

With such terrific force had Blink thrown the curve that the ball refused to be stopped in its course and with Zink hanging on whirled back with undiminished speed toward Blink who caught his brother and the ball in his arms.

It was a happy reunion that evening of the Gallupers as they gathered around the camp fire and Blink modestly explained that it had been the only practical plan to save Zink's life.

It might be added that the four Gallupers are having the time of their lives.

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

MARY GRAHAM BONNER

TUESDAY AND LUCY

Now Peter Gnome had taken a package which had been wrapped up by Fairy Grant-Your-Wishes and Fairy Wondrous Secrets and had emptied it upon Lucy's forehead.

Mean Old Measles had gone to visit Lucy, quite uninvited and not wanted in the least. But Mean Old Measles doesn't want to be wanted.

Mean Old Measles finds such mean pleasure in being where she is not wanted.

The package which Peter Gnome had heard the doctor say, just as he had come in right after Peter Gnome had emptied the package, how much better Lucy was and that now she was on the Getting-Well Road. Peter Gnome had had on his invisible robe, so he had not been seen.

He was in high spirits when he went back to Fairyland to thank Fairy Wondrous Secrets and Fairy Grant-Your-Wishes for what they had done and then he went to sleep.

And with his bed of soft moss and blanket of leaves and his quilt of birchbark (for it was sharp at night, Peter thought) over him he had a beautiful, restful sleep.

It was morning and the sun had been up for some time when he awoke. "I have something special to do today," he said. "I know what it is now! I'm fully awake. For a moment I was but half awake and only knew that there was something for me to do. I want to go and find out how Lucy is and if she's feeling much, much better."

So Peter Gnome put on his invisible robe and he hurried off to see Lucy. Oh, how much better she looked, and how much better she was!

Peter stayed upon the window sill and listened to hear what was being said, for he did hope he would hear Lucy talk and hear her say that she felt lots better, for that would make him so very happy.

And Lucy did talk about how much better she felt. Then Peter heard Lucy's grandma say:

"The doctor told me this morning that you were a day ahead of the most he had ever hoped for; he said that he had hoped you would begin to get better by Tuesday—that was the very most he had hoped."

"And instead of that he said you and made such a remarkable change for the better a whole day ahead."

Well, Peter Gnome was delighted. He would tell them about this in Fairyland and he would thank Fairy Wondrous Secrets and Fairy Grant-Your-Wishes yet more for having done more than even the doctor could hope for at the very most and at the very best!

He was on his way back when the Breeze Brothers brought him a message.

"Father Week wants to talk to you," was the message. "His son, Monday, has something special to say."

Peter Gnome hurried to see Father Week and there was his son Monday, peeping out of one of Father Week's pockets.

"Hello, Peter Gnome," cried Monday. "Didn't I have a trout yesterday, Lucy began to get well when I was around and I didn't know that was to happen."

And then there was great dancing, for Father Week's daughters are the Happy Moments which go along with his sons, the Days.

"We were there, too," shouted Monday's Happy Moments.

"Yes, and I told Tuesday the good news as we met last night at Mid-night," added Monday.

"I'll tell them about your rejoicing," said Peter Gnome, "when I get back to Fairyland. They will be delighted to think they gave you so much for."

So Peter Gnome went back to Fairyland and while Lucy took a restful, comfortable little nap, Tuesday, Father Week's third son, sang this song:

I'm feeling happy, I'm feeling gay,
For Lucy's so much better today.
Mean Old Measles has lost her sway,
Monday said she'd been held at bay.
Ah, yesterday Lucy was better, I know,
But today she's much further along.
Healthy Row,
Oh, Tuesday is very glad!

The KITCHEN CABINET

It's fun to dare in the face of despair, when the last long chance seems gone, And to see hope rise in the angry skies like a promise of rosy dawn; For victory's sweet when it crowns defeat, and you learn this much is true— It's fun to fight when you know you're right, and your heart is in it, too.

SOME WAYS WITH PEAS

Peas are one of our most nourishing vegetables; belonging to the proteins they take the place of meat in the diet.

One may have a green boiled dressing by adding a cupful of peas sifted through a sieve.

The dressing is not only improved in color and flavor, but its food value is increased.

Green Pea Soup.—Take one pint of green peas, a quart of stock, six small onions, a small bunch of mint, a bunch of parsley, a large handful of spinach, two tablespoonfuls of butter and a teaspoonful of salt. Wash the spinach, parsley, and mint, add the peas and salt to the stock with the other vegetables and cook until soft. Put all through a sieve and reheat. Season with butter and salt and serve hot.

Pea Souffle.—Cook a pint of peas until soft, put them through a sieve, add two tablespoonfuls of butter, a pint of milk and the yolks of three eggs. Season with salt and pepper and fold in the stiffly beaten whites. Pour into a buttered dish and bake twenty minutes.

Salmon and Pea Salad.—Flake a can of salmon, removing the skin and bones. Take an equal amount of cooked peas and mix well with the salmon. Serve on lettuce with a hotted dressing with a sour pickle chopped in bits.

Combination Salad.—Take one cupful of peanuts cut in bits, two cupfuls of peas, one-half cupful of olives minced, a bit of onion and a mayonnaise dressing to serve on lettuce. Seasonings of salt and cayenne may be added to taste.

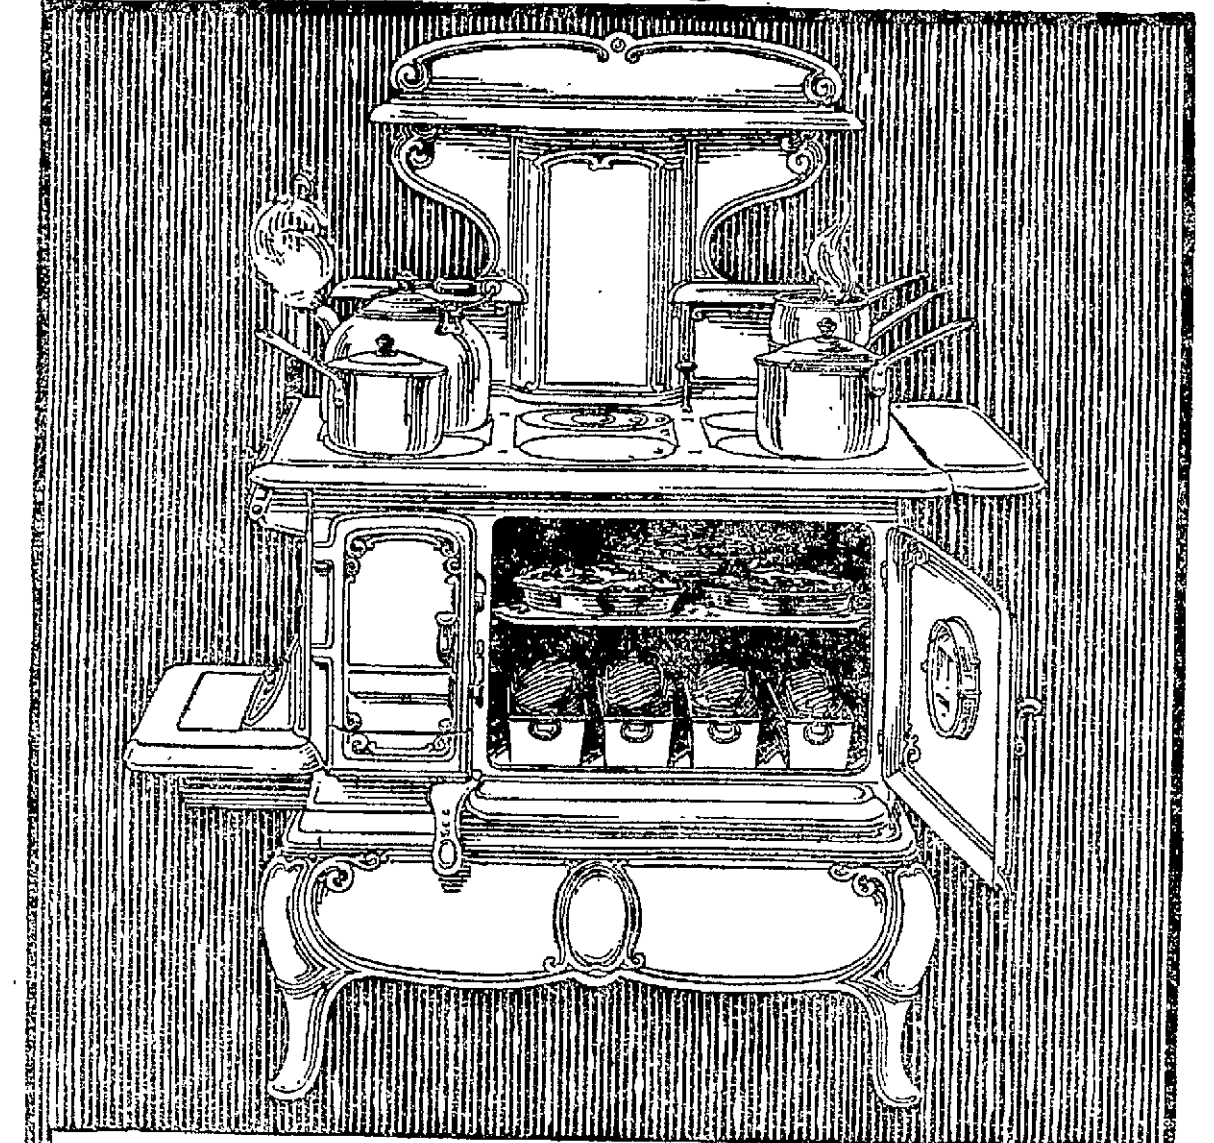

Peas and Peppers.—Take the tops from six peppers, remove the seeds and soak in a strong brine over night. Moisten with liquor for a can of peas. Fill the shells with one-half cupful of minced meat, one cupful of peas, one-half cupful of bread crumbs, a little onion juice, salt and pepper to taste. Bake until the peppers are tender.

Yukon Timber in Demand.
For all the timber produced in the Yukon there is a local demand, so that there is no export. During the great rush of mines in 1898 there was a pressing demand for lumber for the building of houses, sluice boxes and the other equipment of mining camps. Sawmills were established at Dawson, Selkirk and Whitehorse. Large quantities of wood were required for fuel, and that demand continues. Mining also still calls for large quantities of timber for shafts and tunnels.

Human Hair as a Commodity.
Forty bales of human hair is one item of a cargo reaching Seattle from China. Each 133-pound bale is worth more than $400 here; our annual imports exceed $500,000, and most of the hair goes into hair nets.—Scientific American.

Don't grow old with an old range

COOKING three meals a day, 1000 meals a year, you actually spend three solid months of working days at your range from January to January.

Life is too short to waste your time over an old stove that you can't depend on and that has to be coaxed to do its work.

Isn't it about time you traded your old range for an efficient Modern Glenwood? Ask us for particulars.

RHINECLIFF FERRY TO CHANGE TIME

The Rhinebeck & Kingston Ferry Company announces a slight change in its time table to take effect next Sunday. The changes are practically an adjustment to conform with the use of Eastern Standard time. Under this schedule the first trip on week days is made at 7 a. m. from Kingston and 7:20 a. m. from Rhinecliff. (On Sundays the first trip from Kingston will be 7:40 a. m. and from Rhinecliff 8 a. m.) The last trip at night is made at 10:20 p. m. from Kingston and 10:40 p. m. from Rhinecliff. Trips through the day are made at the usual forty minute intervals. Complete time table can be found in our advertising columns. On the same date a change is made in the time table of the New York Central Railroad, the time of a number of trains being changed to suit the return to use of Eastern Standard time. Ferry connections are provided for all trains for which connection has been made during the summer months.

Valuable to Mariners.
In a recent speech in New York Signor Marconi, the man who first made wireless communication possible, announced that he has worked out a method of directing radio waves instead of permitting them to scatter broadcast. He does it by means of what he calls "reflectors," the construction of which he did not clearly explain. He believes that the invention will be valuable not only in sending messages in a single direction but in controlling messages that are now sent out to sea from stations on the shore so that ships can determine their exact distance from land.—Youth's Companion.

She Won.
A young man met his pretty girl cousin the other day for the first time, and was attracted by her.
"I bet you a dime," he said, "that I can kiss you without touching you."
"Of course you can't," replied the girl.
"Well, will you take the bet on?" asked the other.
"Yes," said the girl dubiously. Her cousin thereupon kissed her.
"Oh, but you did touch me!" exclaimed the girl.
"I know I did," replied the young man, with a grin, "and here's your dime."

Don't tell us that normalcy is not here. A gentlemanly agent presented us with two sample plugs of tobacco last Friday. Just like they used to do in the good old days when a nickel had some value in a village store.

NAVY FLYER ESCAPES IN BIG CLOUD BANK

Gyroscopic Turn Indicator Enables Him to Right His Plane and Avoid Disaster.

One of the most thrilling of recent aviation experiences has been reported from the bureau of aeronautics of the Navy department. It is the story of a flight with threatened disaster and death waged by Capt. H. C. Mustin, U. S. N.

When fighting a gale of wind in a seaplane between Annapolis and Washington he encountered engine trouble in a cloudbank 1000 feet deep.

Captain Mustin, who is assistant chief of the bureau of aeronautics and one of the most experienced pilots in the service, was making a return flight to Washington from Philadelphia in a Vought seaplane, the type that is now being placed on the battleships. The route followed was down the Delaware river to Wilmington and then overland to the Chesapeake. On reaching Annapolis, as the plane was headed for Washington, the trouble commenced.

Heavy winds were blowing at the high altitude chosen for the flight. Dense cloudbanks marshaled themselves between the plane and the ground. At the same time the engine developed serious trouble. The indications being that water had got into the fuel. It was necessary to make a descent through the thick cloudbanks, with every prospect of disaster in the landing. The density of the clouds intensified the immediate danger to the flyer.

It was in this emergency that Captain Mustin called into service an instrument that has recently been made the standard equipment of all types of naval planes, the gyroscopic turn indicator—a device designed to keep the pilot informed of the relative position of the plane when flying in dense fogs or banks of clouds. The use of it enabled the flyer to keep a true course and to prevent him flying in circles or even upside down and to maneuver his plane with an accurate idea of his position and keeping his true course while considering the necessity for a forced landing. The plane was in close proximity to the ground when the engine picked up, enabling Captain Mustin to reach the Potomac.

ANCIENT HAWAIIAN SKULLS

Find of Scientists May Explain Origin of the Island Race

Information which may throw valuable light on the mystery which surrounds the origin of the Hawaiian race was obtained in explorations on the Na Pali side of the island Kauai by the party of scientists under the direction of Dr. H. D. Gregory of the Bishop museum.

The finest type of terracing for agriculture in the Hawaiian Islands was found in the valleys on Kauai and the irrigation system displayed great engineering skill on the part of the early Hawaiians who lived there, Dr. Gregory said. A prow of an ancient outrigger canoe was found in one of the caves high up on a cliff. The prow contained three skulls, which, on first examination appeared to belong to some race other than the Hawaiian, probably to a race originating more to the south. The skulls may hold the secret of the origin of the Hawaiians, Dr. Gregory said.

According to ancient Hawaiian legends, the people of the Niihau and Kauai valleys—the scene of the recent explorations—were the only ones in the islands who were not mastered by Kamehameha the Great when he united the archipelago into a kingdom. The only entrances to the isolated valleys are up ladders or on narrow trails and it was easy for the inhabitants to repel attempted invasions.

GOATS MOTHER ANTELOPES

Former Were Hostile at First and Then Showed Indifference.

Two goats at the Washington park zoo at El Paso, Tex., are now mothering a pair of baby antelopes captured on the plains south of Juarez. The antelopes are five weeks old and are thriving.

The goats at first showed some hostility toward their charges. Now they accept the two orphans as a matter of course, although they show little affection.

In striking contrast is the attitude of a monkey mother in a nearby cage for her baby's digestion. Although he is getting to be a husky youngster, the mother still refuses to allow him to eat peanuts offered by visitors. When he slips by her and gets one in his mouth, she grabs him, boxes his ears and forces open his mouth, removing the peanut. Then she gives him a good scolding.

FEW PEOPLE DIE OF OLD AGE

Only 707 Out of 129,575 in New York State During 1921.

Among the 129,575 persons who died in the state of New York during 1921, only 707 died of old age, although the death rate was the lowest on record and country-wide statistics show that four years have been added to the average life through disease preventive work during the last eleven years. Commenting on these figures the State Charities Aid association points out that in an entire world in which preventives against disease and accident had been so highly organized as to be perfectly effective, many years of life would have been saved.

"You wrote me," protested the summer boarder, "that mosquitoes never bothered you."

Would Be Burglar Suffered.

Conversational powers of two women holiday-makers at Brighton, England, saved them from robbery. On the first night of their holiday, occupying the same room, they gossiped about one thing and another for hour after hour until daylight appeared. Then in the gray light of dawn, they saw a man getting out of the window of the room. It appeared he had been under the bed all night hoping to obtain some valuables from the room when the occupants were asleep, but was forced to leave the room on the arrival of daylight, after having listened to hours of private conversation. This gift of woman has often been suspected.

DOWNER WRITES OF NEAR EAST

First Hand Information From Scoured Area From Woodstock Youth Who Left Art Studies in Paris For Trip in Russia.

Kenneth Downer, son of Dr. and Mrs. Mortimer B. Downer of Woodstock, who is now in Berlin, has been in the Near East Relief Service in Russian Armenia a good part of the time since February of this year and probably no better information as to conditions in the famine-stricken area can be had than his letters to his parents, extracts from which are as follows:

Paris, France February 1922.
John Varney and I have decided to go to Russia. We do not know how we are going to get in, but we are going to get in somehow. I have been studying at the Sorbonne in Paris this winter and lived in the Quartier Latin. We almost froze to death, as the houses had little heat or none at all. Our decision to go to Russia was rather sudden, and we are all excitement, hurriedly packing up, and buying some necessary things. We leave for Marseilles tomorrow.

Athens, Greece, March 1922.
Our trip through the Mediterranean was wonderful. Such blue water and sky was wonderful. The sea was very calm. We made the acquaintance of two young men, a Greek and an Italian. We got to be very good chums. We stopped at Naples, Italy for a day, but had chance to see a great deal of the town. Our next stop was Athens. We stayed there for a week. We were lucky to have our Greek friend, as he did the talking and piloted us around. I saw all the historic places of this romantic city, and surrounding country.

Constantinople, Turkey.
Everything is so strange here. I was very hard to get adjusted at first. Just as we got to like the place we had to leave. We discovered a little eating place kept by an American. One could get anything from Boston baked beans to pumpkin pie. Needless to say we were frequent customers. I had a funny experience. I wanted some paints and brushes to make some sketches. In Constantinople and in fact all of the east, goods for sale have no price marked on them. Everything is bartered for, and the best man wins. I went in a small shop kept by an old Turk. He asked me a high price, I acted disinterested and swung my cane and started to go out. He ran after me and caught my arm, offering the goods for less. I still was obdurate, and after this performance was repeated several times I succeeded in getting my paints for about a third of the original price, with some brushes thrown in to boot. How to get into Russia? We tried several schemes which failed. At the last minute, John who was always a life saver met a friend, a Russian, whom he had met in Petrograd during the revolution. He seemed to have some influence, and we were given passports, which had to be vized by three governments: English, Turkish and Soviets. Our destination was Batoum. We were warned however that perhaps we would not be permitted to land, and might be turned back. Nothing could daunt us.

Alexandropol, Russian Armenia.
Our trip across the Black sea was uneventful. We are studying Russian very hard. We got in all right and were fortunate to get positions with the Near East Relief. We made our trip from Batoum to Alexandropol with donkeys and carts, as all other transportation has broken down. John was sent ahead as superintendent of supplies of the Tiflis district, while my district was Alexandropol and the surrounding country. The misery here is beyond words. I have about twenty-five thousand people to feed. I took a trip of inspection by horseback, being gone a week, visiting twenty villages, with about twenty thousand population. Practically all were starving. They are so badly off that they resort to cannibalism. The authorities severely punish this. While on this trip I slept on the ground with the sky for a cover. We feed them beans, hominy grits and rice. The children get condensed milk. There was no work so it was decided to put the men who got relief to work cleaning up the city and paving the streets. I was put in charge of this work. So all of the principal streets of Alexandropol were paved. (I enclose a photo showing the work. You will recognize me in the foreground in a Russian uniform directing the work.)

Alexandropol, Russian Armenia, July, 1922.
Three months have gone by since I left from home, or could get a letter through. Mails are very uncertain, as they are stolen by bandits. My letters to you were held up and censored by the Turks and returned to me from Batoum. Things are going better now. Vegetables are ripening and if we have rains, crops will be sufficient to feed the people next winter. I heard so much of the Turkish massacres that I decided to investigate. I took a trip twenty-five miles from here to a wild mountainous country where a massacre was said to have taken place. It was an ideal spot for such a tragedy. In a deep mountain gorge with his precipitous cliffs. Thousands of Armenian women from all the surrounding country were rounded up here. They were butchered and their bodies were thrown over the cliff to the ravine below. Their bodies were under the snow and ice for five months, and were washed down and partly covered by sand and stones by the spring freshets. There, the bodies were, decomposed and partly eaten by wolves. I saw a lot black braid of hair with a red ribbon tied to it. I pushed it with my foot and was appalled to see the head roll down at my feet. It was estimated that there were from five to 15,000 bodies along five miles of this gruesome ravine. The stench was appalling. The reason that the Turks gave was that the Armenian women sold themselves in such large numbers to the Turks, that this action was a public necessity.

Tiflis, Russian Armenia, July, 1922.
I have come to Tiflis to visit John. On my way here I was arrested but managed to escape. On the train an official with a Bolshevik soldier came to me and charged me with some irregularities with my trunk. The soldier said "Follow me." He went ahead and I followed. I turned and escaped through the rear door. I mingled with the crowd on the platform and when the train started I jumped aboard. Fortunately my trunk was in the box car. Tiflis is a wonderful city. Most all the buildings are of white marble with flat roofs. I met a young Russian, Dan, who was studying in the University at Moscow. He was imprisoned, and dared not go back. Sodya is a beautiful young Russian girl. The streets of the city are all lined with locust and magnolia trees, and in the moonlight the white houses and the trees are sublime. Dan played the violin while Sodya danced for me on the flat roof at night. These young Russian girls of the south are the finest dancers in the world. We tried to get into Turkoman, but were denied passports as there was a revolution going on.

Moscow, Russia, August 1, 1922.
Moscow at last. I was five days on the Volga traveling on an old boat. The most beautiful farming country that I have ever seen. Thousands of square miles green waving grain, and yellow sunflowers. The land was flat on both sides of the river for a number of miles, and the hazy mountains could be seen miles away in the distance. The boat was loaded with passengers, mostly Bolshevik soldiers and officers. I was writing my experiences, and Dan's prison experiences when I noticed the soldiers gathering around me and staring at me. I would view the landscape and then write, supplementing it by sketches. It seemed to work for a time, but when the officers came around and glared at me with such forbidding looks I decided to quit. I am sure that if I had not I would have gotten into trouble. I swam in the Volga and Moscow rivers and in the Caspian sea. The Moscow river flows through the city and the people bathe nude, the men on one side of the bridge and the women on the other. We had trouble in getting a room in Moscow. We could not be accommodated in a single hotel. They were reserved for employees of the Soviet government. No idlers can get a bed here. We tramped all day, and late at night succeeded in finding a room. We went upstairs in the dark. I heard a clicking noise and finally got a candle, and was startled to find the floor covered with millions of cockroaches and lice. We did not have the courage to turn down the cover, (ragged and foul) of the "umble-down cot" in the corner. We decided "to beat it." We went back to the station where our baggage was and slept on the concrete floor, rolled up in our army blankets. These blankets which you sent us were the envy of all who saw us. I was dead tired and slept like a log. At dawn I was awakened by a noise, and found a Turk trying to open my trunk. I jumped up and "landed him one wallop." The last I saw of the Turk was his red fez as he was disappearing in the fog. We succeeded in getting a room at last from an elderly lady, who was a countess before the war. We had to pay six million rubles for the room. Moscow is very squalid. Dirt everywhere, and everything dilapidated. The people were in rags, wearing mostly the uniforms of the European armies. Food is more plentiful now. White bread is for sale.

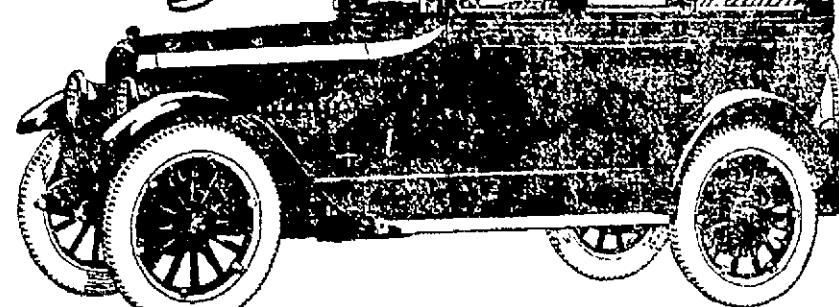

Riga, Latvia, Sept. 1, 1922.
Out of Russia now, and nearer home; nearer to you all. I am glad to be out of Russia again. I was from one end of Russia to the other. Went from Moscow to the great city so famous for its fairs, Nizny Novgorod. I took a fifty mile hike into the country living among the peasants. They are wonderfully simple and hospitable people. What a change Riga is from Moscow. Here the city is very clean and every one is working, and has an air of prosperity. Things however are picking up by leaps and bounds in Russia. Since the Bolsheviks have taken the ban off private property, building has started, repairs are being made, paint is being put on, and things are commencing to improve. About the Soviet government a great deal can be said for it, and as much can be said against it. I hope such a revolution will never come to America. I had trouble in getting out of Russia at the Lithuanian border. I was held up on account of my passports. I would not get out of the train. I held it up for an hour, and after blustering around for an hour "American bluff" went, and so I am here. I had a fine Persian rug when the Bolsheviks took away from me not permitting me to take it out of the country without permission from Moscow. They gave me a receipt for it, but I am afraid that I will never see my rug again.

Berlin, Germany Sept. 5, 1922.
Took a steamer from Riga through the Baltic sea to Stettin, Germany. Down the Spree. The country looks very much like France. Berlin is a beautiful city. It is scrupulously clean, with wide streets. The shops are brilliantly lighted, with everything imaginable exposed for sale. It is such a wonderful sight, after being so long where everything was dull. The working men are in sad plight. I talked with a number of them. They are tired beyond endurance. I blame the Allies for this policy. Things are very cheap here. The American dollar buys fifteen hundred marks. One can get an excellent dinner for three hundred marks, (twenty cents). Was over to Potsdam, the Versailles of Germany. Soon I will be back to Paris, and the Sorbonne and the Quartier Latin. I hope a big bunch of mail awaits me there. I wish I was back in Woodstock to see you all, if only for a short time to kiss and hug you all. Your dear son,

KEN.

The new Goodyear Cross-Rib Tread Cord

A Real Cord Tire for Small Cars at a Popular Price

The new Goodyear Cross-Rib Tread Cord in the 30 x 3½ inch clincher type is a tire that the small car owner will warmly welcome.

It gives him, at a price lower than the net price he is asked to pay for many "long discount" tires, every advantage of quality cord tire performance, for it is a quality tire through and through.

It is made of high-grade long-staple cotton; it embodies the reliable Goodyear quality of materials; its clean-cut tread engages the road like a cogwheel.

The scientific distribution of rubber in this tread—the wide center rib and the semi-flat contour—gives a thick, broad surface that is exceedingly slow to wear.

The tough tread stock in this tire is carried down the sidewalls clear to the bead, making it rut-proof to an extraordinary degree.

In every particular it is a representative Goodyear product, built to safeguard the world-wide Goodyear reputation.

Despite its high quality, and the expertness of its construction, it sells at a price as low or lower than that of tires which lack its important features.

The 30 x 3½ inch Cross-Rib
Cord clincher

$12.50

This price includes manufacturer's excise tax

Goodyear Cross-Rib Tread Cord Tires are also made in 6, 7 and 8 inch sizes for trucks

Week for All Within Thirty Days— Agreement Based on Baltimore Plan But Details Are Not Made Public.

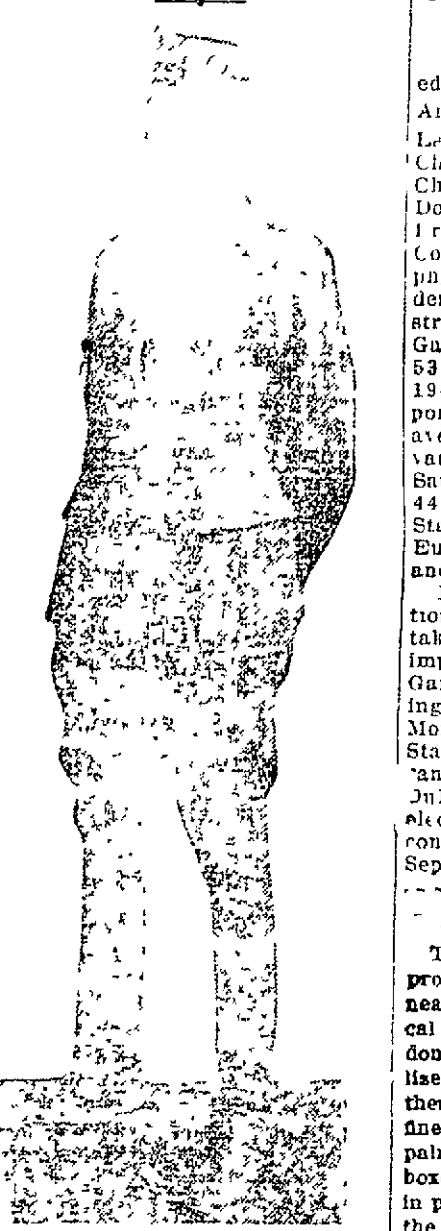

A settlement between the New York Central lines and the representatives of their 20,000 striking employees of the shop craft unions was made Tuesday in New York on the basis of the Baltimore agreement.

The peace treaty was signed after conferences lasting virtually all day between Bert M. Jewell, president of the railway employees' department of the American Federation of Labor, and William H. Johnston, president of the International Association of Machinists, representing the strikers, with S. W. Crowley, vice president of the New York Central lines. The railroad issued this statement: "B. E. Jewell, president, railway employees' department, American Federation of Labor, and William H. Johnston, president, International Association of Machinists, and the federated committee representing the employees on strike, conferred today with representatives of President A. H. Smith, of the New York Central lines, and a settlement was arrived at conforming with the Baltimore agreement."

The employees now on strike will return to work as rapidly as positions can be arranged for them, all within thirty days of the date of the agreement. This arrangement for the return of the men is to be worked out locally between their representatives and officers of the railroad company at the various points.

Irony and Big Eyes.
Help was scarce, and the packers had to be treated with great care to keep them from walking out. The foreman of the big apple-packing house had suffered almost all he could stand. A full team in the rush of work, and one of the sorters, a thin little girl with big eyes and an Irish name, began to try her hand at packing. "Here, you!" cried the foreman, glad to relieve his feelings on some one. "Cut that out. Put that paper back!" The girl's eyes grew larger as she weekly laid the paper on the table; but she kept them fixed on him, unabashed. "Put it on the shelf where it belongs," he ordered. She did so and with her wide eyes still fixed on his said gently, "You don't have to speak kind like that to me. I ain't sick or nothing."—Youth's Companion.

London's Famous Fog.
No description of London would be complete without a reference, however brief, to the singular alacrity and charm of the London climate. This is seen at its best during the autumn and winter months. The climate of London, and indeed of England generally, is due to the influence of the Gulf stream. The way it works is this: The Gulf stream, as it nears the shores of the British Isles and the propinquity of Ireland, flows into the sea, turns into soup, and comes down on London. At times this soup is so thick it is in fact a little more than a misty day other times it has the consistency of a thick Potage St. Germain. London people better their atmosphere by eating a fog; but it is not; it is soup—Stephen Leacock in Harper's Magazine.

Queer "Parliamentary" Tactics.
The palm for parliamentary battles probably belongs to a small island near Tahiti. A trader induced the local natives, who are cannibals, to abandon their wars in favor of more civilized procedure, and to encourage them he built at his own expense a fine house of commons made of plaited palm leaves and furnished with soap boxes as seats. Alas! for his faith in parliaments. When he turned up for the first day's assembly it was to find that the "government" had attacked the opposition party from a neighboring island by kidnapping all their warriors, allowing only the aged and infirm to continue the journey to the parliament which was to settle their respective futures!—London Times.

Permanent Teeth.
When your permanent teeth are all in place nature has finished her tooth job. You have your share of teeth and if you don't take care of them you will either have to do without teeth or use artificial ones. Who wants to do without teeth? Certainly you and we don't. Besides it is not very pleasant to have them taken out. Your permanent teeth are a wonderful mechanism. They constitute your food, give shape and expression to your face and distinctness to your voice. The loss of even one tooth is a very serious injury, but the loss of more than one is a calamity. The longer you live the more you need your teeth.—National Dental Association Journal.

Prize Morsel Among Cannibals.
Among the cannibals of New Guinea, according to W. F. Alder in his new book, "The Isle of Avarice," no morsel is more prized than a feast than the left shoulder blade of a ten-year-old girl. It is recorded also that one roasted "long pig" will satisfy the hunger of 100 persons, but that it is considered more prudent to have one for every six persons. When a raiding party of cannibals, says Mr. Alder, finds a victim asleep they always awaken up before killing him; the reason being that the first word he utters is used as the name of the next baby born in the settlement of the raiders.

Steel Has Great Cutting Power.

"High-speed steel" for cutting tools has been well known for years, and an improved form of this material has been introduced in Sheffield, England. It is reported that this steel has four times the cutting power of any other in use. The composition is, it appears, still a secret, but it is said to be the first "high-speed steel" that can be hardened in cold water without danger. It can also be hardened with oil or in a cold blast.

Tools made of it wear out much less rapidly and require much less grinding than those of the older kinds of steel. They will also go on working at high temperature longer. But the makers themselves say that this steel does not by any means mark the final development of "high-speed steel."—Washington Star.

Imperfection at a Premium.

It was not so long ago that brick "seconds" sold cheaply and were used only in foundations and low-grade work which the eye never found. They were the misshapen, distorted part of each building and the manufacturers were glad to dispose of them. But finally a builder with an eye for the artistic noticed their colors, which ran from the natural red to odd browns and blues. He experimented and found they had an ancient appearance even when newly laid and when capped by a rough roof of off-colored slate, carried a distinct atmosphere of antiquity. As a result, strange, queerly attractive houses are appearing all through the country and brick "seconds" are quoted far above their perfect mates.—Wall Street Journal.

FAD FOR EARRINGS

Becoming Quality of Decoration Is of Importance.

Bobbing Dangles Add Touch Needed to Complete Dress of Woman of Present Day.

Who would ever have supposed that earrings could be as fashionable in a modern day as they have come to be? They no longer can be considered as an article of jewelry; they are the article of jewelry in the New York Times. Without earrings one is as nothing in the way of personality, for those bobbing trinkets mean everything. A gown is nothing without its accompaniment of earrings. The diamond sunburst of old was inconsequential compared to this new fad.

The becoming quality of the earrings cannot be overestimated. A woman who has never before thought of wearing anything of the sort purchases, in fear and trembling, perhaps, a pair of bobbing dangles for her ears. She does them in some doubt. She eyes herself questioningly in the mirror. She does not know whether she can stand this new fashion. But when she steps out upon the street she finds that many admiring looks before her.

The Rev. Dr. Putnam Cady, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, will again act as lecturer on a Whitcomb tour of the Mediterranean this coming winter, being accompanied by Mrs. Cady. Dr. Cady's church has granted leave of absence for the time necessary for the cruise. The steamship Rotterdam has been chartered and will accommodate about 600 persons. Information as to bookings may be had from Dr. Cady.

denied her are now turned in her direction. She begins to throw her chin a trifle higher in the air, to give more swing and poise to those ornaments which, at first, she regarded so hesitatingly. She has realized that her whole costume, her whole bearing, her whole position in the world of well-dressed women, has gained—that, in other words, she has added the one touch needed.

Nowadays when a woman appears without earrings one wonders what makes her look so undressed. There is something subtle about the modern fashions which demands this extra decoration.

If one observes the design of the modern costume, whether it be day frock, wrap or evening gown, one can plainly see how, by its very simplicity, it demands just the sort of added decorative touch that earrings alone supply. A costume itself is complete in its own simplicity. Any added touch would only serve to spoil its general effect. That would not do at all. But, earrings—they are another matter. Add them to your draped crepe frock and see what they will do for it. They may bring it out of the commonplace into the ranks of individual types. Earrings do much to emphasize the type which is your own, the thing which, after all, is of more value to you than any dress in the world, for it emphasizes the characteristics which it has taken you years to build up and of which, after all, you should be justly proud.

THE SMART TUB SILK FROCK

Shirtings Make Charming Warm Weather Dresses; Cost Little More Than Gingham.

Tub silk is used to fashion many of the smartest frocks of the season. These tub silks, in reality silk shirtings, make charming warm weather dresses, and they are so reasonably priced this year that a home dress-maker may have a silk frock at a cost very little greater than that of a gingham one.

If a good quality is selected, the material launders well and easily, requiring, of course, no starch or other finish. It is always wise to choose a simple style design in planning one of these frocks.

Touch of Color.

Whether for suit wear or to be worn with separate skirts, white blouses hold the center of the stage. A touch of color may appear in the trimming, but the main portion of the blouse will be white.

CLUB INSPECTS
YAMA DAHLIAS

On Tuesday afternoon, the members of the Ulster Garden Club were the guests of Mrs. Saar at Yama Farms, the invitation having been extended at this time in order that the wonderful display of rare dahlias might be seen. There are some two hundred varieties of dahlias now in bloom at Yama Farms and Dr. Morrill, a noted horticulturist and an authority on these flowers, gave an informal talk as the guests strolled through the exquisite dahlia garden. Later in the afternoon tea was served at Mr. Seamon's.

The next meeting of the Garden Club, which will occur on October 3, and which will be the annual meeting with the nominating committee in charge, will be held at the home of Mrs. Finch on Pearl street.

Lewis, president of the club and Mrs. W. N. Pessenden, with Mrs. Augustus Van Buren and Mrs. Oscar Edwards, alternates, were elected.

The club also voted to contribute $25 toward the fund being raised for the building of the national headquarters of the Women's Federation at Washington, D. C.

Society Notes

A very pleasant party was held at the home of Mrs. Marie Stewart, 90 Ann street, Saturday evening, September 16, where games, dancing and singing were enjoyed by all. Lunch was served at midnight. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Stewart, Misses Mary Burk, Rose Stewart, Carrie Carson, Marie Nicholas, Elizabeth Nicholas, Coria Dulbois, Mildred Williams, Marie Newburgh, Mrs. Susie Stewart, Miss Genevieve Stewart, William Dugan, Charles Scott, Henry Scott, John Christiana, Thomas Lewis, Thomas Kearney, James Cregau.

Lane-Lennon.

Harry Lane of Kerhonkson and Miss Lennon of this city were married on Sunday by the Rev. Mr. Raxson.

Dittess-Bennett.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kenneth Dittess have arrived home in Newburgh from their wedding trip, which has been spent motoring in the northern part of the state. Their wedding took place on Thursday, September 14. The Rev. Edmund Biles of the Methodist Episcopal Church in New Paltz officiated at the ceremony, which was performed in that village. Mrs. Dittess was formerly Miss Ada Bennett, daughter of Mrs. A. Bennett of Gardiner, who has been making her home in Newburgh for the past few years, being employed by various companies. Of late she has been in charge of the souvenir stand at Orange Lake. Miss Minnie Bennett, sister of the bride, attended her, and A. Pelter of Kingston acted as best man. Following the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Dittess left on their trip. Mr. Dittess is employed by Hout & Vardon in Newburgh as a bookkeeper. The groom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Dittess of 60 South street, Newburgh.

Powers-Finnerty.

A very pretty wedding was solemnized this morning at 9 o'clock at St. Mary's Church when Miss Molly D. Finnerty became the bride of Martin A. Powers. They were married at a nuptial Mass, the Very Rev. John J. Hickey officiating, assisted by the Rev. Fathers Cushman, Corbett and Fagan. The bride was attended in a blue travelling suit. During the services Professor Rieser played the wedding march and Mrs. Powers sang "Ave Maria" and at the conclusion of the services she sang "O Promise Me." A large number were in attendance. Miss Finnerty is well and favorably known throughout the city and county, having inaugurated the Catholic charities in this county. For the past two years she has been the secretary of this organization and her work has been of the highest order. Mr. Powers is a chemical engineer, employed at Palmetton, Pennsylvania. They were attended by Mr. and Mrs. William C. Hussy. Following a wedding trip to Atlantic City they will reside in Palmetton.

ONLY FEW DAYS OF SUNSHINE

Composers of Popular Ditties Seldom Repeat, Though They Never Seem to Give Up Hope.

Tin Pan alley, like its lyrical refrain, has its joys and sorrows. Secure youths with a dash for popular ditties are suddenly showered with gold. Broadway welcomes them with open arms. In the dazzling new world the gleamers of the White Way are soon on the trail. O. O. McIntyre writes in the New York Mail.

Four composers whose tunes were whistled in every city and hamlet have in the last few days fallen upon evil days. Still another—the composer of 50 successful songs—died friendless in the charity ward of the bleak Blackwell Island charity hospital.

It is possible to count on the fingers of one hand song writers who have made fortunes and kept them. The two most noted examples are Irving Berlin and Gene Buck. The Society of Authors, Composers and Publishers has voted donations amounting to $1,500 to indigent composers during the last month.

The money comes suddenly and Broadway has its hall fellows who are ever ready to aid in the spending. There are quite a few composers and lyricists who have dashed off a song in a publishing house in a single afternoon and received royalties of more than $50,000.

Because of this miracle they believe that they can do the same thing almost any afternoon they gather around the piano. The truth is that no composer has more than four distinct song hits. A hit, incidentally, is not a mere successful song. It means that the sales must amount to more than 100,000 copies.

An Inviting Retort.
"Some men can appreciate single blessedness," Rose—"And some are not satisfied until they are doubly blessed."

REMINDED COLONEL OF HOME

Use of Word "Tote" Brought to Virginian Joyous Memories of His Boyhood Days.

Colonel Culpepper came from Virginia so many years ago that he thinks he is a New Yorker, and he has lost most of his Virginia speech. Occasionally, when excited, he uses a word that is seldom heard in this city, but generally his speech is correct in syntax and orthography.

"I was made homesick today," he said, "when I saw a word I often heard in my youth, but which is seldom used in the North. It was the word 'tote.' Some man who does business on the cash and carry plan has named his store the 'Tote Service.' Tote is a mighty good word, and when I was a boy we used it regularly. It is good Elizabethan English. Up here you use the word 'carry.' Down in Virginia we use that word in a broader sense. We carry a horse to water, carry a girl to church or home therefrom. If we mean to take up and convey bodily we say tote."

"The store sign took me back to my boyhood—back to the time I toted a girl's school books when I carried her to school."—New York Correspondence of the Pittsburgh Dispatch.

Cumulative Effect.

Some years ago there sat as a member of the state legislature in Colorado a quiet character known as Uncle Boggs. In a speech delivered by one of the members a gentleman of the other party was hotly assailed, the latter, however, declining to reply to the castigation. The speaker concluded his remarks by pointing to the object of his attack:

"There he sits, Mr. Speaker—there he sits, mute, silent and dumb."

"Yes Mr. Speaker," interrupted Uncle Boggs, "and he isn't saying a word."—Pittsburgh Leader.

BLOW AFFECTS THE NERVES

Sudden Shock to Brain Causes Sensation Known to Many of Us as "Seeing Stars."

Each of the five senses has its special set of nerves through which sensations are recorded in the brain.

With the exception of the nerves of touch, which extend to all parts of the body, these perform special functions for certain individual organs, the nerves of sight being connected with the eyes, those of smell with the nose, those of taste with the mouth, and those of hearing with the ears.

Never the brain receives a sudden shock, such as would follow a blow on the head, the vision nerves are disturbed in such a way as to produce the effect of seeing flashes of light, or "stars."

The sensitive eye-nerves cannot be jarred without producing this effect of light, while a severe blow will often result in a similar manner on the nerves of hearing, thus leading the person who is struck to imagine that he is listening to unusual noises.

Fresh Water in the Sea.

A spring of fresh water, which wells up through the sea off Elbury cove, Churston Ferrers, in Torbay, off the British coast, is attracting a large number of visitors.

This is the best time of the year to locate the spring, and yachts are being anchored at the spot, so that visitors may taste the water.

The real source has never been found. It is surmised that the waters from the rainfall near Elbury and the northern hills finds a course in the same valley, and then forces itself up through the sea at a distance of 90 to 100 yards off the beach.

The circular space of the fresh water is plainly visible from the rocks, and the white pebbly beach at all stages of the tide.

KILLS SELF WHEN WIFE REFUSES TO LIVE IN ILION

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Ilion, N. Y., Sept. 20.—William Smith, 62, of Hartford, Conn., assistant foreman for the Remington Cash Register Company, was found dead in his home here last evening with gas tube in his mouth and gas turned on. Smith moved his family here a short time ago, but his wife, being dissatisfied with the city, refused to live here, and a few days ago returned to their former home, telling Smith he could come or stay here as it suited him best. It is believed that Smith, growing despondent over the refusal of his wife to live here with him, committed suicide.

Preparedness.

In one of the Southern states the negroes are great patrons of a matrimonial agency. One darky, anxious to find a wife for his son, went to this agent, who handed him a list of lady clients. Running through this the man came upon his own wife's name, entered as desirous of obtaining a husband between the ages of twenty-eight and thirty.

Forgetting about his son the darky hurried home to announce his discovery to his wife. She was not at all disturbed.

"Yes," she said, "I done give him my name. I puts it down when you was so sick in de winter and de doctor he says we must prepare for de worst."—Saturday Evening Post.

Mystery surrounds the assassinations of the Rev. Edward W. Hall, pastor of the Church of St. John the Divine, at New Brunswick, N. J., and Mrs. James Mills, wife of the sexton of the church, whose bodies were found in a lonely field near the city. They had been shot to death. Love letters from the woman to the preacher were found near their bodies. Mrs. Hall, however, believes the couple were murdered by robbers and insists her husband was not keeping a trust with the choir singer. Mrs. Hall is believed to be worth more than $1,000,000, and her beautiful home is in marked contrast to the home of the dead woman.

Mustapha Kemal, commander-in-chief of the Turkish Nationalist forces of the Angora Government, having captured and burned Smyrna, is reported to have sent an ultimatum to the Allies, demanding that Constantinople be turned over to him within fifteen days and that he be permitted to reoccupy Thrace. The British answer was to dig in in the Dardanelles and dispatch an unusually large force of troops and ships to Constantinople.

ONEONTA STATION
HEARING HELD

U. and D. Contends Its Use of D. & H. Depot is Costly and Dangerous. White Citizens Say It is More Convenient.

A public hearing was held at the city hall in the city of Oneonta Tuesday afternoon upon the complaint of the Chamber of Commerce of the city in reference to the proposed change in the passenger facilities of the Ulster and Delaware railroad. The railroad company is now using the Delaware and Hudson passenger station jointly with the D. & H. This joint use was established by the Federal railroad administration. The railroad company contended that the use of the D. & H. station necessitated the movement of its passenger trains for the distance of one-half a mile through the D. & H. yard at Oneonta which yard is extensively used by the D. & H. company. They further contended that all of the Ulster and Delaware passenger traffic in going through the station moved against the current traffic on the Delaware and Hudson railroad which was a difficult and dangerous movement and which had resulted in one serious accident. This accident was caused by a U. & D. passenger train and a D. & H. passenger train colliding, resulting in a large amount of damage to equipment and certain personal injuries to passengers. It was also shown that the use of the terminal was an expensive operation for the U. & D. company. The Oneonta Chamber of Commerce and other interested parties making the complaint contended that the D. & H. station was centrally located and much more convenient for the public. The hearing covered a period of four hours. Owen Becker of Oneonta appeared for the Chamber of Commerce and H. H. Flemming for the Ulster and Delaware railroad.

LOOKS LIKE N. Y. FOR WORLD SERIES

The Yankee pennant took a boom today following their defeat of the Tigers while the Browns were losing to the Senators. The Yankees now have a lead of two and a half games. They have nine more games to play, and the Browns have eight. Every victory the Yankees gain in their remaining games will make it so much harder for the Browns to overtake them. In order to win the pennant, the Yankees must gain three more victories than the Browns in the few games remaining to be played. This looks like a Herculean task. The Yankees can lose two of their remaining games and still win even if the Browns win all their eight games.

The Giants lost half a game of their lead yesterday when they were idle, while the Pirates were trimming the Phillies. The Giants have a lead of five and a half games. They meet the Pirates in the first of a three game series today. Pittsburgh must sweep the series to have even a look-in on the pennant. One or more victories for the Giants will shatter the Pirates' chances. The Giants have 13 more games to play, while the Pirates have 10. The Giants need only seven of the remaining contests to win out even if the Pirates win all their ten games. This gives the Giants the edge, as they have to play a little better than 500 per cent ball, while the Pirates must play 1,000 per cent.

All in all, it looks like another New York world's series two weeks from now.

Concentration Highly Valuable.

Few things are more valuable to a man than to be able to persistently apply himself to his task until it has been accomplished.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Sept. 20. Final tabulation of votes showed today that all the "Regular" candidates backed by organizations—had won in yesterday's primaries in the New York city district. The majorities for the "Regulars" averaged about six to one.

Contrary to expectations, the vote was split, except in some districts, notably in Kings County, where there were hot contests.

Attempt by a group of negroes in the Harlem district to gain control of the local Republican organization failed.

In the contest for two vacancies on the bench of the court of general sessions, Justice Cornelius F. Collins, Tammany's candidate for one vacancy, and Morris Koenig, judge of general sessions by appointment, and a brother of Republican County Chairman Samuel S. Koenig, won lastly in the Democratic primaries.

Although a Republican, Koenig entered the Democratic primary with the endorsement of Tammany Hall.

Assistant District Attorney Edward Brogan, who entered the race as an independent after failing to get Tammany's endorsement, was defeated.

TAGGING ALL THE BASES

IN THE MAJOR LEAGUES.

Gloom, as thick as puree of peas, settled over the west bank of the Mississippi as the St. Louis Browns dropped the opening game of their series to the Senators, 4 to 3, and slipped two and one-half games behind the Yanks.

The Senators leaned upon Van Gilder for three runs in the eighth, doubles by Harris and Rice flaring prominently. Williams smacked No. 29 but all in vain. Sister was out of the game, his lame shoulder forcing his retirement.

A hearing was held at Hobart, N.
